Albe Giorni Altri Bagliori is a photographic journey through time and light, capturing the beauty of Italy's landscapes and the passage of time.

The project began in 2015, when photographer Francesco Jodice traveled to Italy to document the country's rich history and culture. Jodice spent several years traveling throughout Italy, photographing the country's landscapes, architecture, and people.

The resulting body of work is a stunning collection of images that capture the beauty of Italy's past and present. Jodice's photographs are both evocative and poetic, capturing the essence of Italy's unique culture and history.

Albe Giorni Altri Bagliori is divided into three chapters, each of which explores a different aspect of Italy's landscape and culture.

The first chapter, "Albe," focuses on the country's natural beauty. Jodice's photographs capture the beauty of Italy's mountains, lakes, and coastline. The images are full of light and color, and they convey a sense of peace and tranquility.

The second chapter, "Giorni," explores the country's urban landscape. Jodice's photographs capture the beauty of Italy's cities and towns. The images are full of life and energy, and they convey a sense of the country's rich history and culture.

The third chapter, "Altri Bagliori," explores the country's cultural heritage. Jodice's photographs capture the beauty of Italy's art, architecture, and music. The images are full of detail and color, and they convey a sense of the country's rich cultural heritage.

Albe Giorni Altri Bagliori is a stunning collection of images that capture the beauty of Italy's landscapes and the passage of time. Jodice's photographs are both evocative and poetic, capturing the essence of Italy's unique culture and history.
