By A.A. Milne

Spring is here, the earth is awake, The flowers are blooming, the birds are singing. The sun is shining, the sky is blue, And all is well in the world.

The Daffodils

By William Wordsworth

I wandered lonely as a cloud That floats on high o'er vales and hills, When all at once I saw a crowd, A host, of golden daffodils; Beside the lake, beneath the trees, Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

A Bird Came Down the Walk

By Emily Dickinson

A bird came down the walk: He did not know I saw; He bit an angleworm in halves And ate the fellow, raw.

April Rain

By Robert Louis Stevenson

The rain is raining all around, It falls on field and tree, It rains on the umbrellas here, And on the ships at sea.

Summer is a-coming in

By Christina Rossetti

Summer is a-coming in, Loud sing cuckoo; Groweth seed and bloweth mead, And springeth the wood now.

Wind

By Gwendolyn Bennett

Blow, wind, blow, and go, rat-tat, Tell the dancing leaves where I'm at. I'm running away, I don't know where, But I'm running, running everywhere!

The Swing

By Robert Louis Stevenson

How do you like to go up in a swing, Up in the air so blue? Oh, I do think it the pleasantest thing Ever a child can do!

The Pasture

By Robert Frost

I'm going out to clean the pasture spring; I'll only stop to rake the leaves away (And wait to watch the water clear, I may): I shan't be gone long.— You come too.

Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening

By Robert Frost

Whose woods these are I think I know. His house is in the village though; He will not see me stopping here To watch his woods fill up with snow.

The Road Not Taken

By Robert Frost

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood, And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

These are just a few of the many beautiful poems that celebrate the arrival of spring. We hope you enjoy reading them with your children and that they inspire you to appreciate the beauty of the natural world.

Spring is a time of hope and renewal. It's a time to celebrate the beauty of the natural world and all its wonders. We hope these poems have helped you to do just that.
