- Snow by Robert Frost

The snow is falling softly, The world is all aglow; The snowflakes dance and flutter, Like blossoms in the snow.

- Winter Wish by Langston Hughes

I wish I could build a snowman, As big as a house; With a hat on his head, And a smile on his face.

- Snow Day by A.A. Milne

When the snow begins to fall, The world becomes a winter wonderland. The children laugh and play, And build a snowman in the yard.

- Ice by Emily Dickinson

Ice is a delicate thing, As fragile as a flower. It melts away in the sun, And leaves behind a puddle.

- Winter's Ice by Robert Louis Stevenson

The wind is cold, the air is chill, The ice is hard, the snow is deep. The birds are flown, the trees are bare, And winter's grip is fast asleep.

- Icicles by Christina Rossetti

Icicles hang from the eaves, Like crystal tears from the sky. They sway in the wind, And glitter in the sunlight.

- The Winter Animals by A.A. Milne

The winter animals are sleeping, Under the snow and ice. The bears are in their dens, The squirrels in their trees.

- The Owl by Alfred, Lord Tennyson

The owl sits in the tree, And looks at me. He knows that I am a child, And he is wise.

- The Snow Hare by Robert Frost

The snow hare is a gentle thing, As soft as a feather. It hops and skips through the snow, And leaves no trace behind.

- Christmas Bells by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

I heard the bells on Christmas Day, Their old, familiar carols play. And wild and sweet the words repeat, Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

- The Night Before Christmas by Clement Clarke Moore

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house, Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.

- A Winter Carol by Emily Dickinson

The snow is soft, the air is still, The world is wrapped in white. The trees are bare, the birds are gone, And winter's here tonight.

I hope you enjoyed this collection of poems for winter children. These poems are a reminder of the beauty and wonder of the winter season. They are also a reminder that even in the coldest of times, there is always hope and joy to be found.

So next time you're feeling cold or down, reach for one of these poems and let it warm your heart.
