Three Hands in the Fountain is a post-punk classic by Austrian singer-songwriter Falco. The song was released in 1984 and became a hit in Europe, reaching the top ten in several countries, including Austria, Germany, and Switzerland. It is considered one of Falco's signature songs and has been covered by many artists over the years.

The song is a haunting and atmospheric ballad about love, loss, and redemption. The lyrics tell the story of a man who is haunted by the memory of a lost love. He sees her everywhere, even in the most ordinary places, such as a fountain in a park.

The song is full of vivid imagery, such as the "three hands in the fountain" of the title, which could be interpreted as a symbol of the man's lost love, his own longing for her, and the hope of redemption.

The song's music is slow and atmospheric, with a haunting melody and sparse instrumentation. Falco's vocals are passionate and evocative, conveying the man's pain and longing.

Three Hands in the Fountain is a timeless classic that has resonated with listeners for decades. It is a song about love, loss, and redemption, and it is a song that will continue to be covered and enjoyed for many years to come.

Lyrics

In a deserted park Lonely fountain plays Three hands in the fountain Spray
the names of yesterday

And all my life I've been looking for you And all my life I've been living for you

In a crowded street Lonely hearts collide
And in my mind I see Three hands in a fountain side

And all my life I've been looking for you
And all my life I've been living for
you

Maybe I've been wrong All the time Maybe I've been blind Maybe I've been blind

In a deserted park Lonely fountain plays Three hands in the fountain Spray
the names of yesterday

And all my life I've been looking for you And all my life I've been living for you
